HOW WE MAY USE AND DISCLOSE MEDICAL INFORMATION ABOUT YOU

For Treatment. We may use medical information about you to provide you with medical treatment or services. We may disclose medical information about you/your child to doctors, pediatric nurse practitioners, nurses, medical assistants, technicians, office staff or other personnel who are involved in taking care of you at this office. For example, a health care provider may be treating your child for a breathing problem and may need to know if he/she has other health problems that could complicate treatment. In addition, the provider may need to tell a laboratory technician that your child has diabetes so that we can arrange for appropriate testing. Different personnel in the office also may share medical information about you in order to coordinate the different services you need, such as prescriptions, lab work and x-rays. The health care providers may also tell another provider about your child's condition so that the doctor or nurse practitioner can help determine the most appropriate care for you. Family members and other health care providers outside this office may be part of your medical care and may require information about you that we have.

For payment. We may use and disclose medical information about you/your child so that the treatment and services received at this office (i.e. be billed to and payment may be collected from you, an insurance company or a third party. This may involve the use of a collection agency. For example, we may need to give your health plan information about a service you received here at this office so your health plan will pay us or reimburse you for the service. We may also tell your health plan about a treatment you are going to receive to obtain prior approval or to determine whether your plan will cover the treatment.

For Health Care Operations. We may use and disclose medical information about you for office operations. These uses and disclosures are necessary to run the office and make sure that all of our patients receive quality care. We may also disclose information to other doctors, nurse practitioners, nurses, medical assistants, technicians, and other office personnel for review and learning purposes. We may also combine the medical information we have with medical information from other offices and groups to compare how we are doing and see where we can make improvements in the care and services we offer. We may remove information that identifies you from this set of medical information so others may use it to study health care and health care delivery without learning who the specific patients are.

In certain circumstances, we may need to share your medical information with a business associate (i.e., transcription company, accountant, or attorney) so it can perform a service on our behalf.
